A WORD IN SEASON.

We publish, elsewhere in this issue, the action of the democratic committee for this county on last Saturday relative to the method of nominating candidates for judge and commonwealth's attorney. We heartily approve of this ac tion and of the end it was intended to accomplish. The chairmen of the committees for the four counties composing the judicial district constitute the district committee, whose duty it is to determine the time and manner of selecting the party nominees. These chairmen are but the creatures of their re spective committees, being removable by them at their pleasure, and it seems only proper and right that they should but the mouthpieces. Nor is it open to not only of Lincoln, but of Garrard, mary election to a delegated convengreatly. We have taken some pains to the part of the Republican party. ascertain by actual inquiry the party feeling on this subject, and we con in the evening, to indicate his choice, serious matter for the owners. and in the most convenient way, at his home voting place, instead of at the county courthouse. It gives to his vote girls of Morristown, N. J., is dead. is attended, in a district of only four her their queen. counties, with less expense even and less annoyance than any other method ever devised, and above all it is a certain and unmistakable declaration of the real choice of the people. In point of convenience, economy, certainty. fairness and freedom from opportunity or appearance of fraud, this method is immeasurably superior to the convention method. What rational and can did objections can there be to its adoption? There is indeed but one reason for a candidate, or his friends, opposing a popular vote, and, bluntly, it is this: they do not believe he is the choice of the people, but they do hope he may effort, be declared the choice of an adroitly manipulated convention of county-town

The mass-meetings to appoint delegates are not held all day but at a fixed hour and for about five minutes. The resolutions have been prepared in some convenient law office beforehand, the delegates have already been carefully selected by the local boss, and the whole is railroaded thro' before the honest country gentleman who has happened in has had time to ay "Mr. Chairman." In the convention thus composed, and dominated always by the few who are masters of parliamentary law while the mass of delegates are actually as helpless as if democrats that he possibly would their seats, the good of the party is never once thought of, corrupt combinations are easy, nay more, they are inevitable, and the outcome is a public scandal and bitter and disastrous party strife. deny a single item of the indictment? The gentlemen who constitute the district committee will at their meet ing on next Saturday make their choice between these two methods, the one eminently fair and satisfactory, the o ber in its practical workings notorlously unfair and unsatisfactory. We are but an humble private in the ranks and shall not assume to dictate to the gentlemen who are wearing the shoulder straps. We tare only saying out what eight idemocrats out of ten are thinking, and we are thus saying it, not in the interest of any individual or slate, though we have our decided preference like others, and shall express it at the polls, if given the chance, but solely for the highest good of the party. Yet the committee will do well to realize that it represents more than 5,000 democratic voters, and not merely some half-dozen officeseekers, and it will do well also to inform itself of the wants and feelings of those voters and to then take them into very serious account. Otherwise they may have occasion to realize that they have done exceedingly ill.

In Memory of Miss Della Caldwell.

Miss Della Caldwell, whose illness was noted in your last issue, died Friday night, July 25, aged 16 years. The end was so calm and peaceful that the ket. sorrowing watchers by her bedside hardly knew when it came. She was confined to her bed 15 days. Her ail- ance. ment, typho meningitis, took such a hold from the start that the best medical aid was unavailing, and though suffering excruciatingly in the beginning, she lost consciousness some time prior to her death and was apparently free friends in this community. from pain. Della was a sweet girl, beloved by all who knew her. One had only to know her but to love her. She was kind, gentle and affectionate and her death has caused universal sorrow. During ber illness scores of friends called daily to offer their services and in nearly every instance a wish was expressed that something could be done to repay some kindness rendered by her. She was a distant relative of the writer, and baving known her since childhood, we knew her to be kind unto all, especially the aged. Without C. Rinearson, G. P. A. ostentation, the aim of her life was the accomplishment of good, which she mainly did by alleviating the sorrow of others; and her gentle, patient, kindly ministrations were rarely equaled. She was a strict member of the Baptist church and will be greatly missed at church and Sunday school. Her father, mother, three sisters and three brothers and a host of friends are left to mourn for her. But their loss is Heaven's gain and a good girl has gone to her reward. Tenly it may be said. to her reward. Truly it may be said
